THAT AWFUL SURPLUS. How Forty Million Dollars of it is Fictition The Profits on Silver Colonge-A Clean ent of the Case.

There seems to be be a good deal of uncertainty as to the amount of the sur-plus in the United States Treas-Some say there is practically none at at all. Some say there is more than $100,000,000. Some say there would be $100,000,000. Some say there would be none if the imperatively necessary expenditures for National objects and for the payment of the actual obligations of the Government were provided for. Some say that if there is a surplus, it should be spent in buying bonds of the Government not yet due. And, of course, there are many schemes good, bad and indifferent, for disposing of the surplus, if there be one.

the Government were provided for, some say that if there is a surplus, it should be spent in buying bonds of the surplus it should be spent in buying bonds of the surplus it there were thing in the Ottawa papers—the collection of revenue. Strangely enough, no one seems to realize where a part of the surplus has actually come from. It is apparently as cepted by all parties that this money has been taken "from the pockets of the people" through the medium of an excessive collection of revenue. Why has not office seekers and convicts, as well as actually come from the pockets of the people at all, but is apparently as may have there of 12 part of the continued medium of the market rate, and continued medium of the market rate of 12 part on the surplus and the market rate of 12 part on the surplus and the market rate of 12 part on the surplus and the market rate of 12 part on the surplus and the market rate of 12 part on the surplus and the market rate of 12 part on the surplus and the market rate of 12 part on the surplus and the market rate of 12 part on the surplus and the market rate of 12 part on the surplus and the WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Props., Burlington, Vt. which the Treasury officials claim it to be.

2. If the United States had coined the same number of dollars as it has done, but had made them of full value, the silver producers would have had the benefit of $40,000,000 additional purchases of bullion; the price of silver would have been to that extent supported and there would now be so much Nos. 1309 AND 1311 MAIN STREET.

value attached to the coins over and above what the metal actually cost the government; secondly, the loss due to continued fall in the market price of silver. The two, together with the expense of recoinage, would cost the government nearer $100,000,000 than $40,000,000, and practically the surplus would disappear.

In other words, to the extent of $40,000,000, the so-called surplus is no more real than if the Government and printed paper notes to that amount and piled them in the vaults. These $40,000,000 the people." They never were anywhere. They represent nothing but an illusion, and they might well be dissipated (spent is hardly the proper word) in putting more silver into the silver dollar. At present it is a boast of counterfeiters that they make as good an article as the Government—equal in fineness and weight—and the profile, at the ruling price of silver, are from 25 to 30 per cent. Let the United States go out of competition with counterfeiters, and their "surplus," as well as its "surplus" (arcades ambo), will disappear.

From the Decorator and Furnisher.

Don't put your initials or your name over everything you possess, so that people who pick up a fork or look at a pillow sham will read "John Brown, my property." It's all right to make things of use in seme such a way, but not things of beauty, and if you must so mark them make the letters small and put them on the back of the object, not the front. The woman who wears her initials in diamonds on a brooch is vulgar. The man who prints his monogram on his chima does a useless thing, for nobody is going to run away with his dishes. Don't assert too much at the table. Don't be too showy and complex. Don't make your napkin rings too emphatic and obtrusive. Put flowers on the table, but place them loosely or in glass, for if you put them in china or any other opaque substance you conceal half their beauty—namely their stems. Don't entirely cover your wall with pictures, and when you have a picture don't let the shopkeeper kill it with a big gold frame. Try bronze or something that will relate to the picture on the wall and not make it stand out like a big shiny spot of color and pink gingerbread. For Yall Trade, is now complete. chases of bullion; the price of silver would have been to that extent supported and there would now be so much less surplus.

3. If the United States should desire to enter into an international agreement for the remonetization of silver throughout the civilized world, it would be obliged, as clearly appears from the report of Mr. Edward Atkinson on that subject, to recall and recoin its silver dollar coinage. This would involve two losses: first, the loss of the fictitions value attached to the coins over and above what the metal actually cost the government; ascendia, the silver dollar coinage.
